

FORTY-FOUR YEARS

Grandchildren. We're all here to say,
To thank our grandparents, for their wedding day.
We'll call back the years of time,
And bring back memories to our mind.

Forty-four years have now gone by,
Since the Lord saw fit to bless this tie.

Grandpa's first wife went to her heavenly home,
And left Grampa here with six children alone.

But soon came the death of little Jake,

God saw fit his sickly body home to take.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.

Forty-four years since the Lord made willing,

For Grampa to marry the woman of his liking.
