

Both he and his wife are buried in the Gnadenu Cemetary south of Hillsboro, Kansas.

7 Son Abraham Harder (1865-1943) married Anna Loewen, daughter of the KMB member Peter P. Loewen, who had settled in the Hoffnungsthal village west of Gnadenu. Loewen's sod house is now the Adobe Museum in Hillsboro. The Abraham Harder family also joined the Seventh Day Adventist Church and farmed in Hooker, Oklahoma, and several other places in Oklahoma and Kansas. They are buried in the Hillsboro cemetery. Son David Harder (1872-1930) and his wife Margaret Flaming, both children of KMB immigrants, lived in Hillsboro, where David taught at Tabor College. They are buried in the Hillsboro cemetery.⁶⁶

7 Son Bernhard Harder (born 1875) married Agatha Friesen, a sister of brother Isbrand's wife; and they farmed near Hillsboro, then near Hooker, Oklahoma, after which they moved to Shafter, California, where they died and are buried. Son Peter Harder (1878-1946) married Kathryn Loewen. Following the lead of his older brothers, Johan and Abraham, they too joined the SDA Church. He entered business and accounting in Hillsboro, after which he taught school in Borden, Saskatchewan. He died and is buried in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.⁶⁷ Helena Harder (1878-1950) and her husband Dietrich Z. Wiebe moved to Hooker, Oklahoma,⁶⁸ and from there to Grand Prairie, Alberta, where they are buried.⁶⁹

6 Son Abraham J. Harder (born 1840) married Anna Fast, the daughter of Aeltester Bernhard Fast (1783-1861) of Halbstadt, who had been his father's predecessor as Aeltester of the Orloff Gemeinde. See Daniel Fast Genealogy cf. Abraham J. Harder has written an extensive biography detailing many of the experiences encountered. Evidently he started his teaching career in apprenticeship to the well-known Franz Isaac, minister and teacher in Orloff, his father's friend and colleague. See "Wiens Families in the Kleine Gemeinde" cf. According to the birth places of the children the family lived in Hierschau from 1862 until 1870 when they lived in Tiege, and after 1875 in Alexanderwohl.

At the time of the death of his first wife, the Abraham J. Harder family was living in Alexanderwohl, Molotschna.⁷⁰ In 1898 Abraham J. Harder married for the second time to Anna Warkentin who died two years later in the Crimea. He was married for the third time to Maria Pauls.⁷¹ He and his third wife lived in Busau, Aktatchi, in the Crimea.⁷²

7 Son Abraham A. Harder (born 1866) was the founder of the orphanage at Grossweide, Molotschna.⁷³ Daughter Katharina Harder (1875-1926) married Gerhard J. Thielmann and in 1900 they bought a Wirtschaft in Neukirch from Johan Reimers later moving to Sagradowka.⁷⁴ Daughter Aganetha Harder (born 1884) and her husband Peter Wiens served as missionaries in Russia.
